Skin to skin is the best place for babies to transition to life.

- Learning to breastfeed is easier when babies are held skin to skin before and during feedings.
- In Post Partum you can continue to use the one section of the Swaddle or add the second Section to give more support.
- Your baby is fully covered and comfortable with the Arc Design and length of the Swaddle. Keep his head in an upright position and turned to lay flat against your chest with airways clear.
- Your baby can easily move from the upright position between your breasts to the breastfeeding position on the upper side of your breast.

* infant and mother must have full skin-to-skin contact, without any clothing or materials being present in the ventral area (no bras are allowed!) because fabric in the ventral area will impeded all brain-mediated responses to KC (Kress, Minati, Ferraro, & Critchley, 2011).
